

The time is worth the month of winter solstice

When the change is due to come.

Change returns success

Going and coming without error.

Action brings good fortune

Sunset . . .

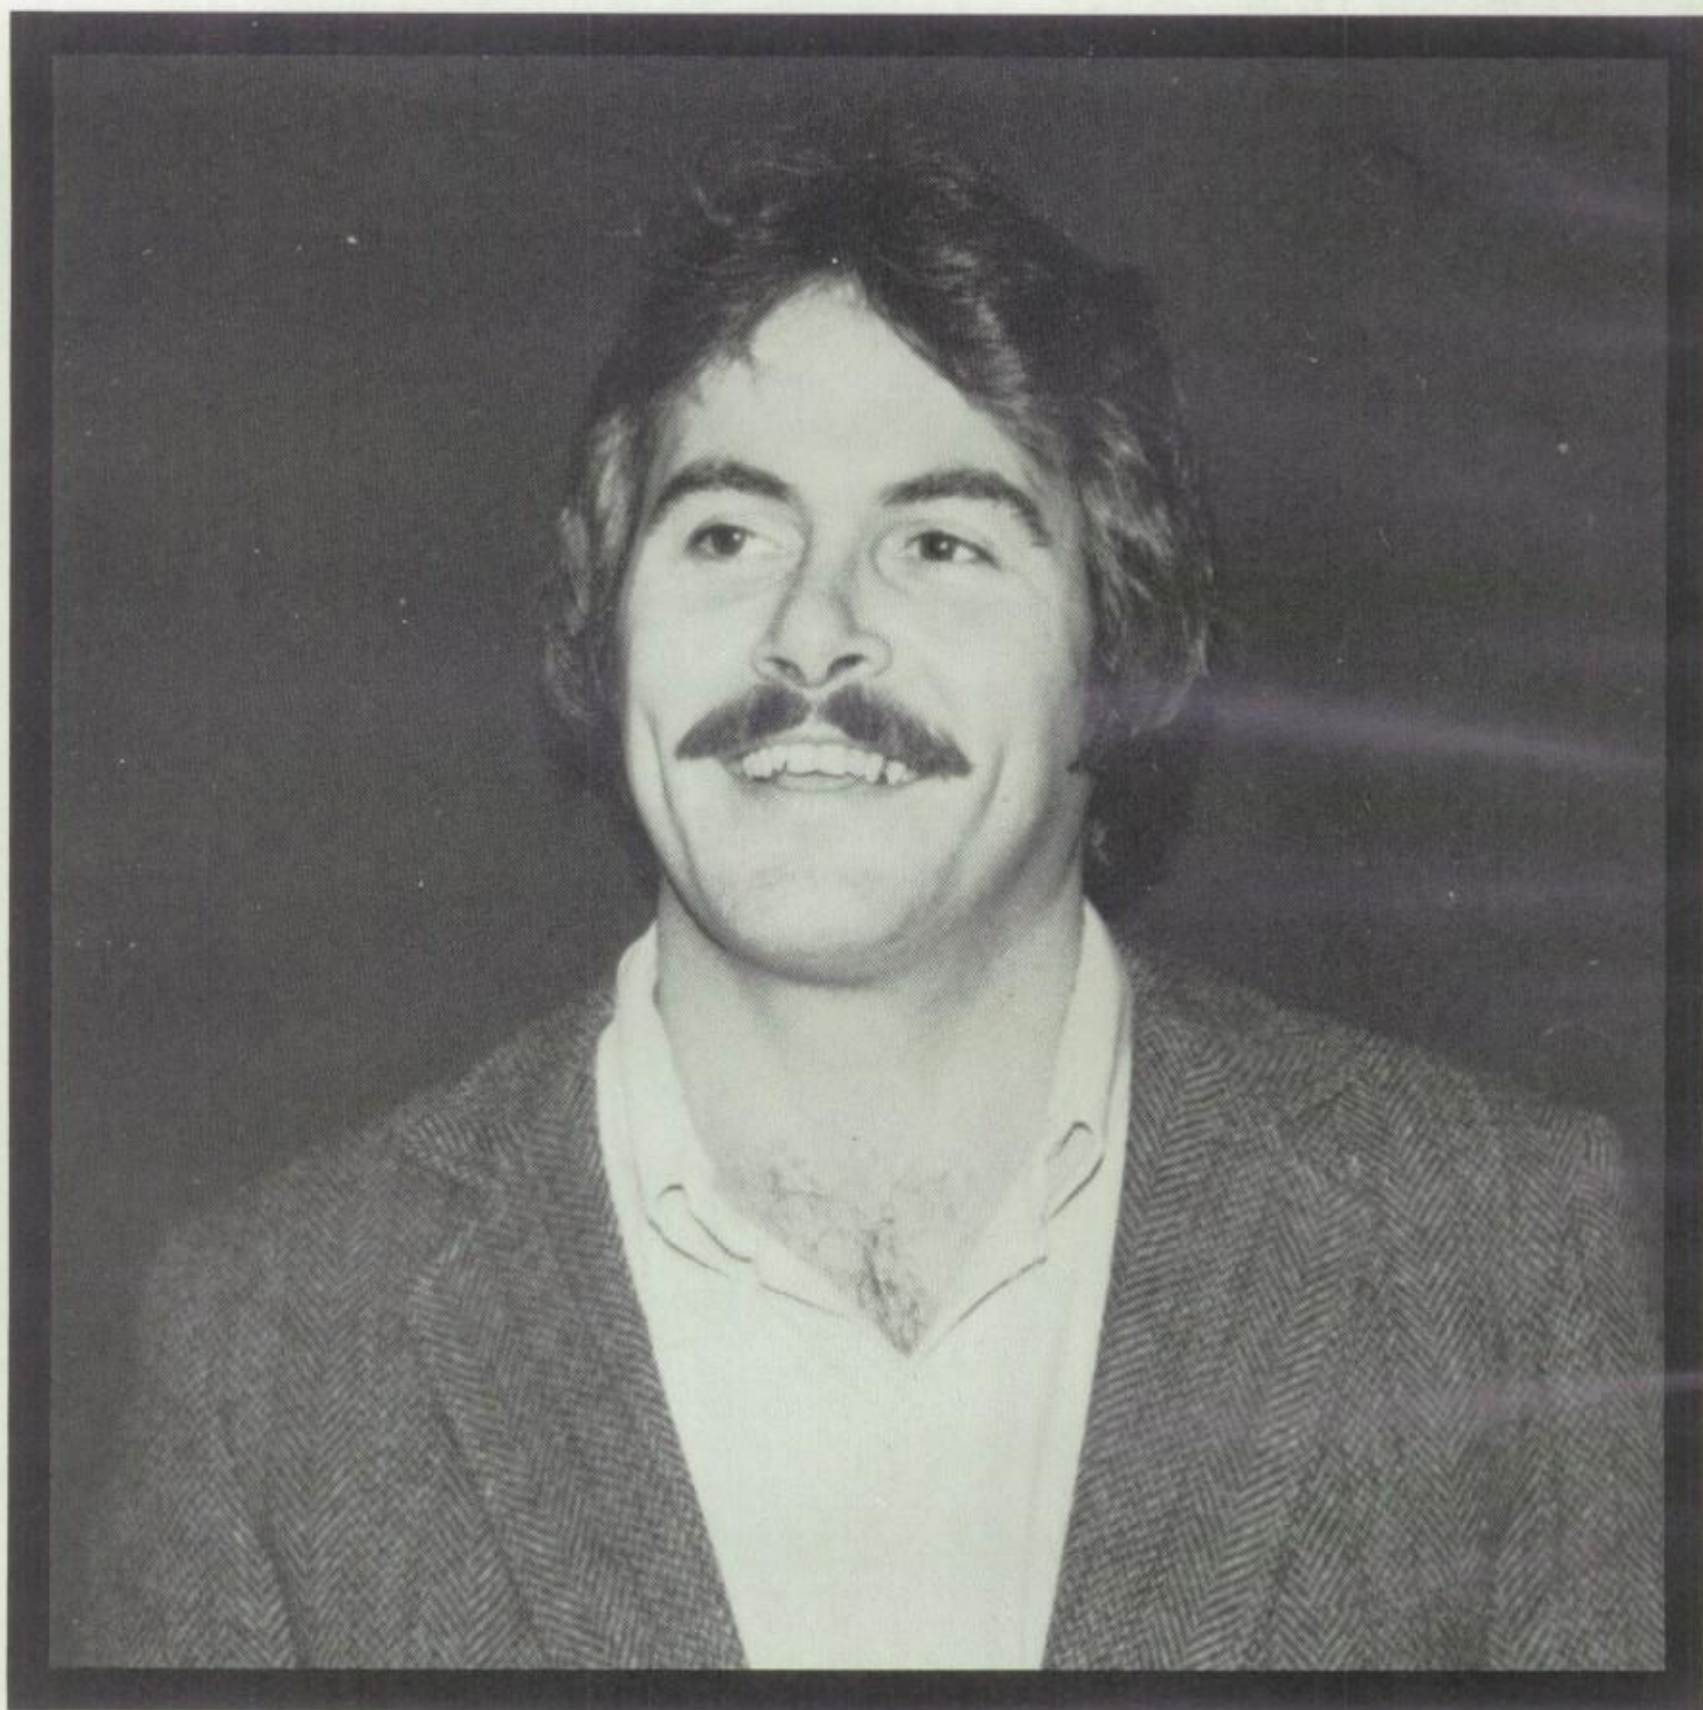

Things cannot be destroyed once and for all.

WACHUSETT REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL

Holden, MA

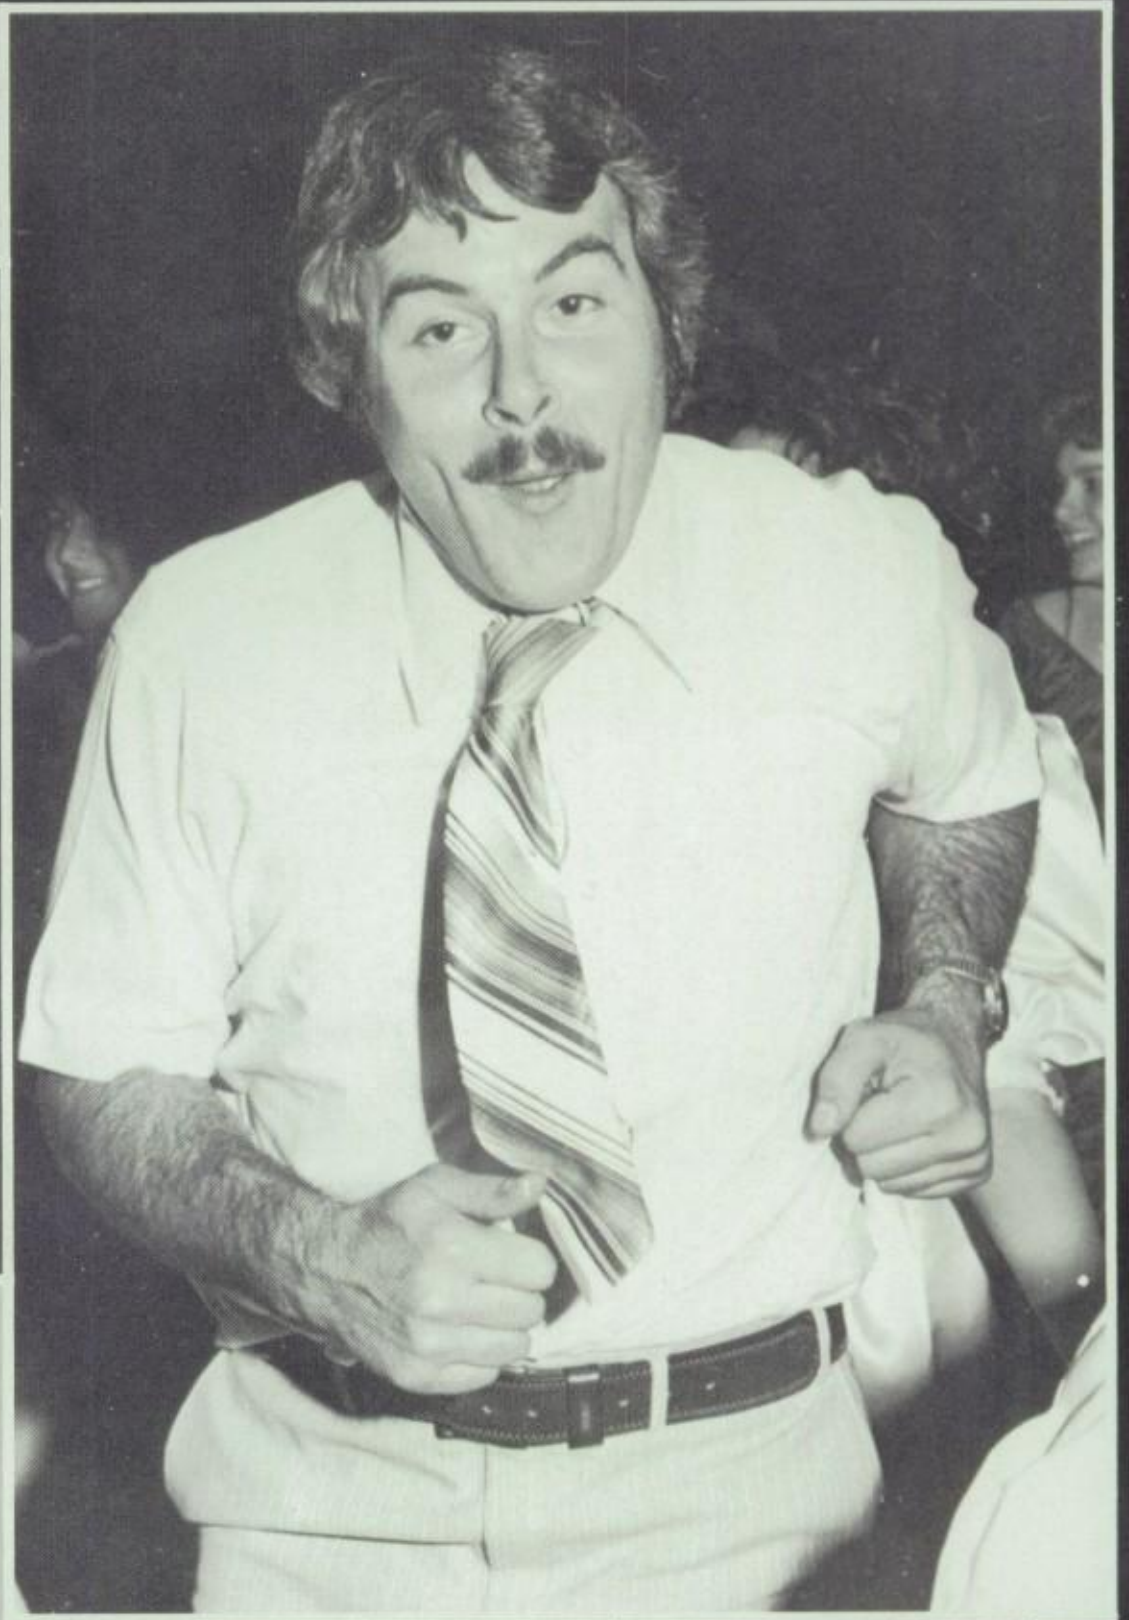

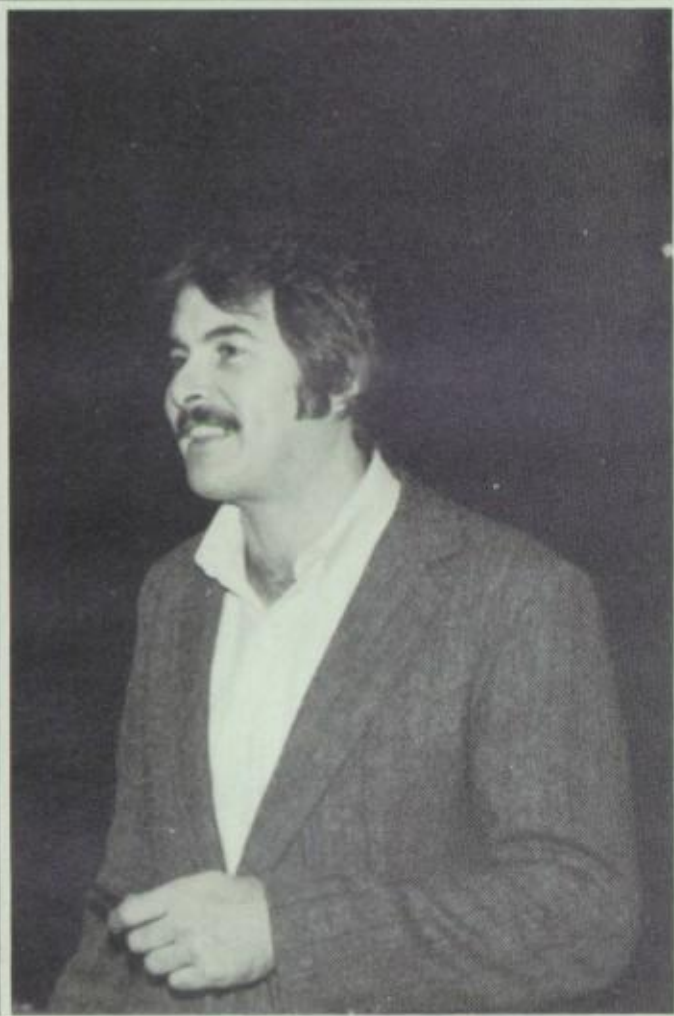

Mr. Ethier,

Our yearbook is dedicated to you. You who made way for us as a whole without failing to guide us as individuals. Thanks for being the driving force behind the highlights of our high school years, as well as being a sensitive friend.

Sincerely,

The Class of 1983

Let the good times roll

Let them make you a clown

Let the good times

roll

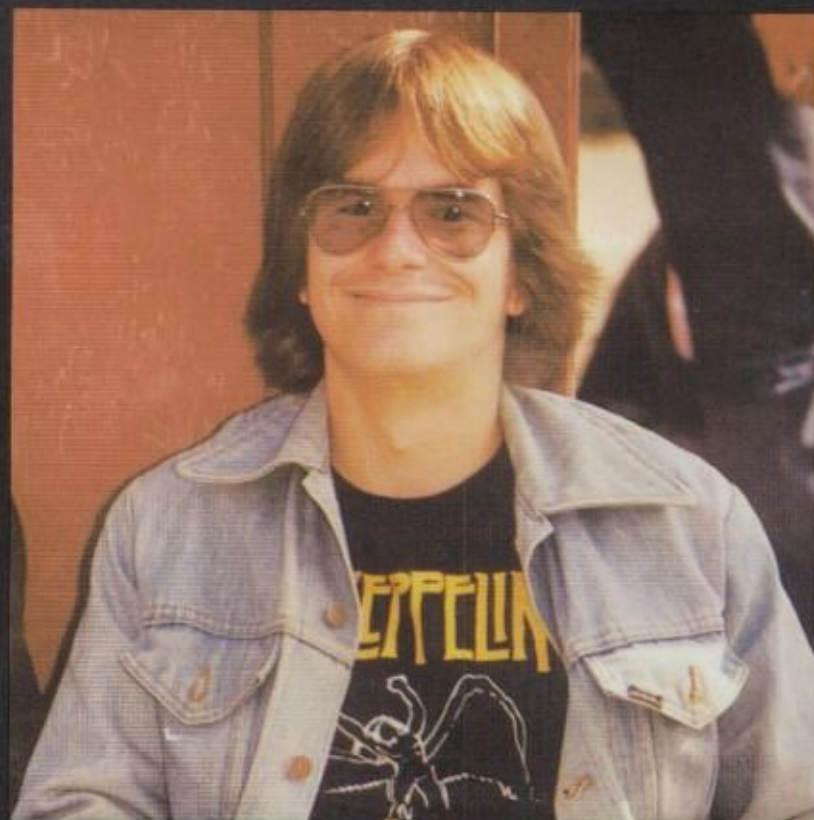

Let them knock you around

Time it was what a time it was

A time of innocence

A time of confidence

There were sunny days

We thought would never end

Lonely days

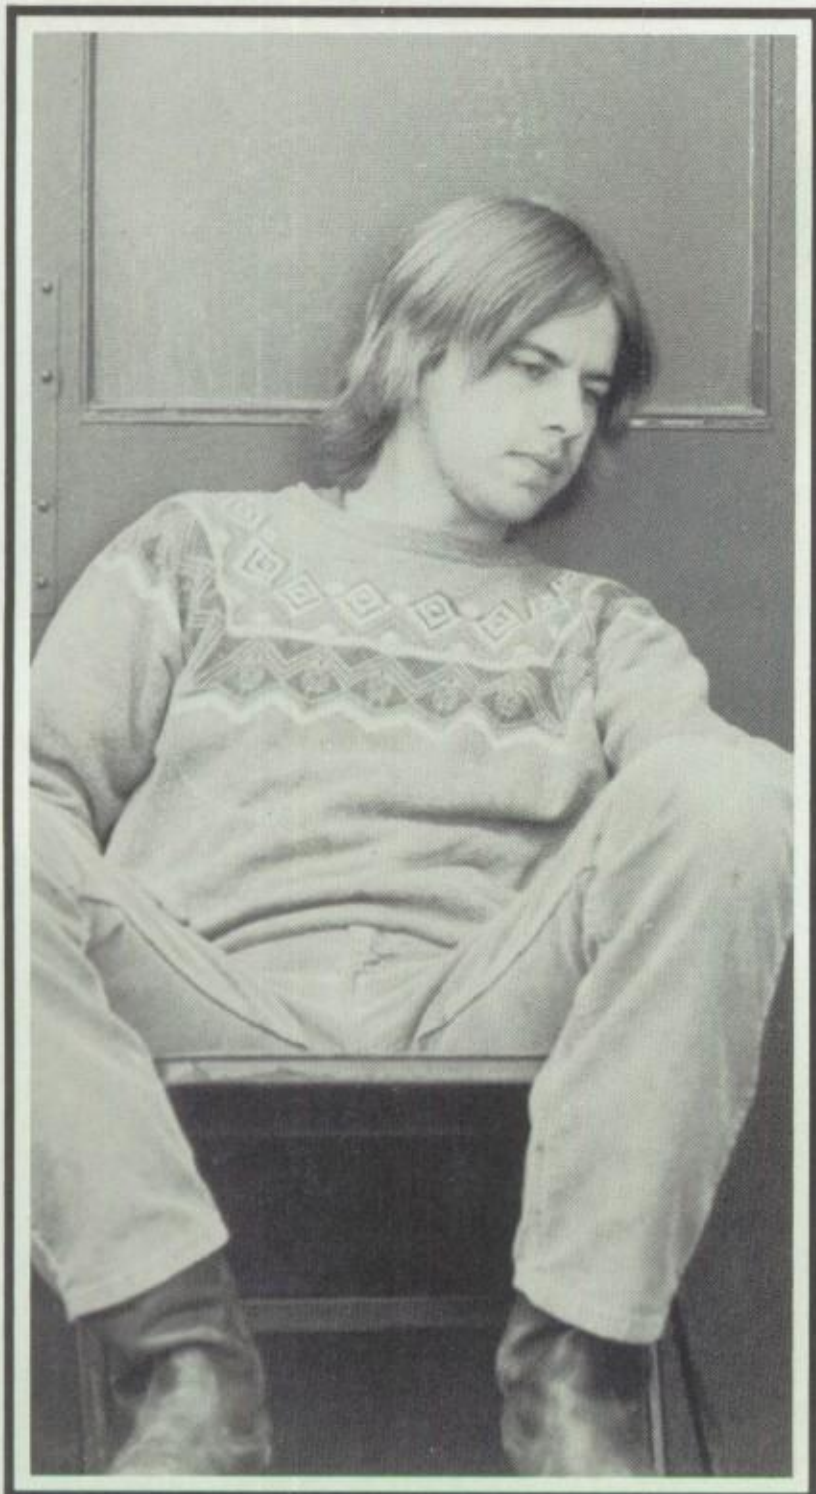

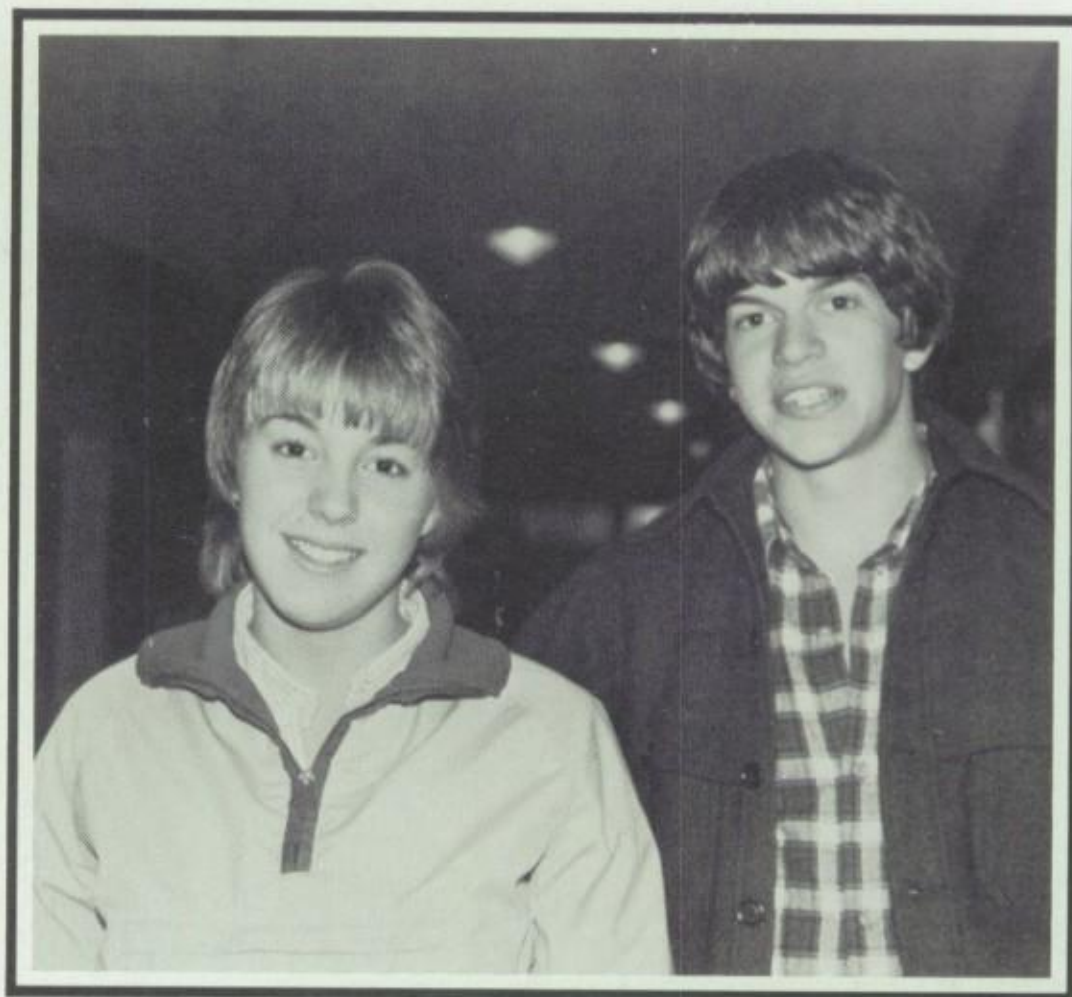

And times without a friend

We've been through so much

Together

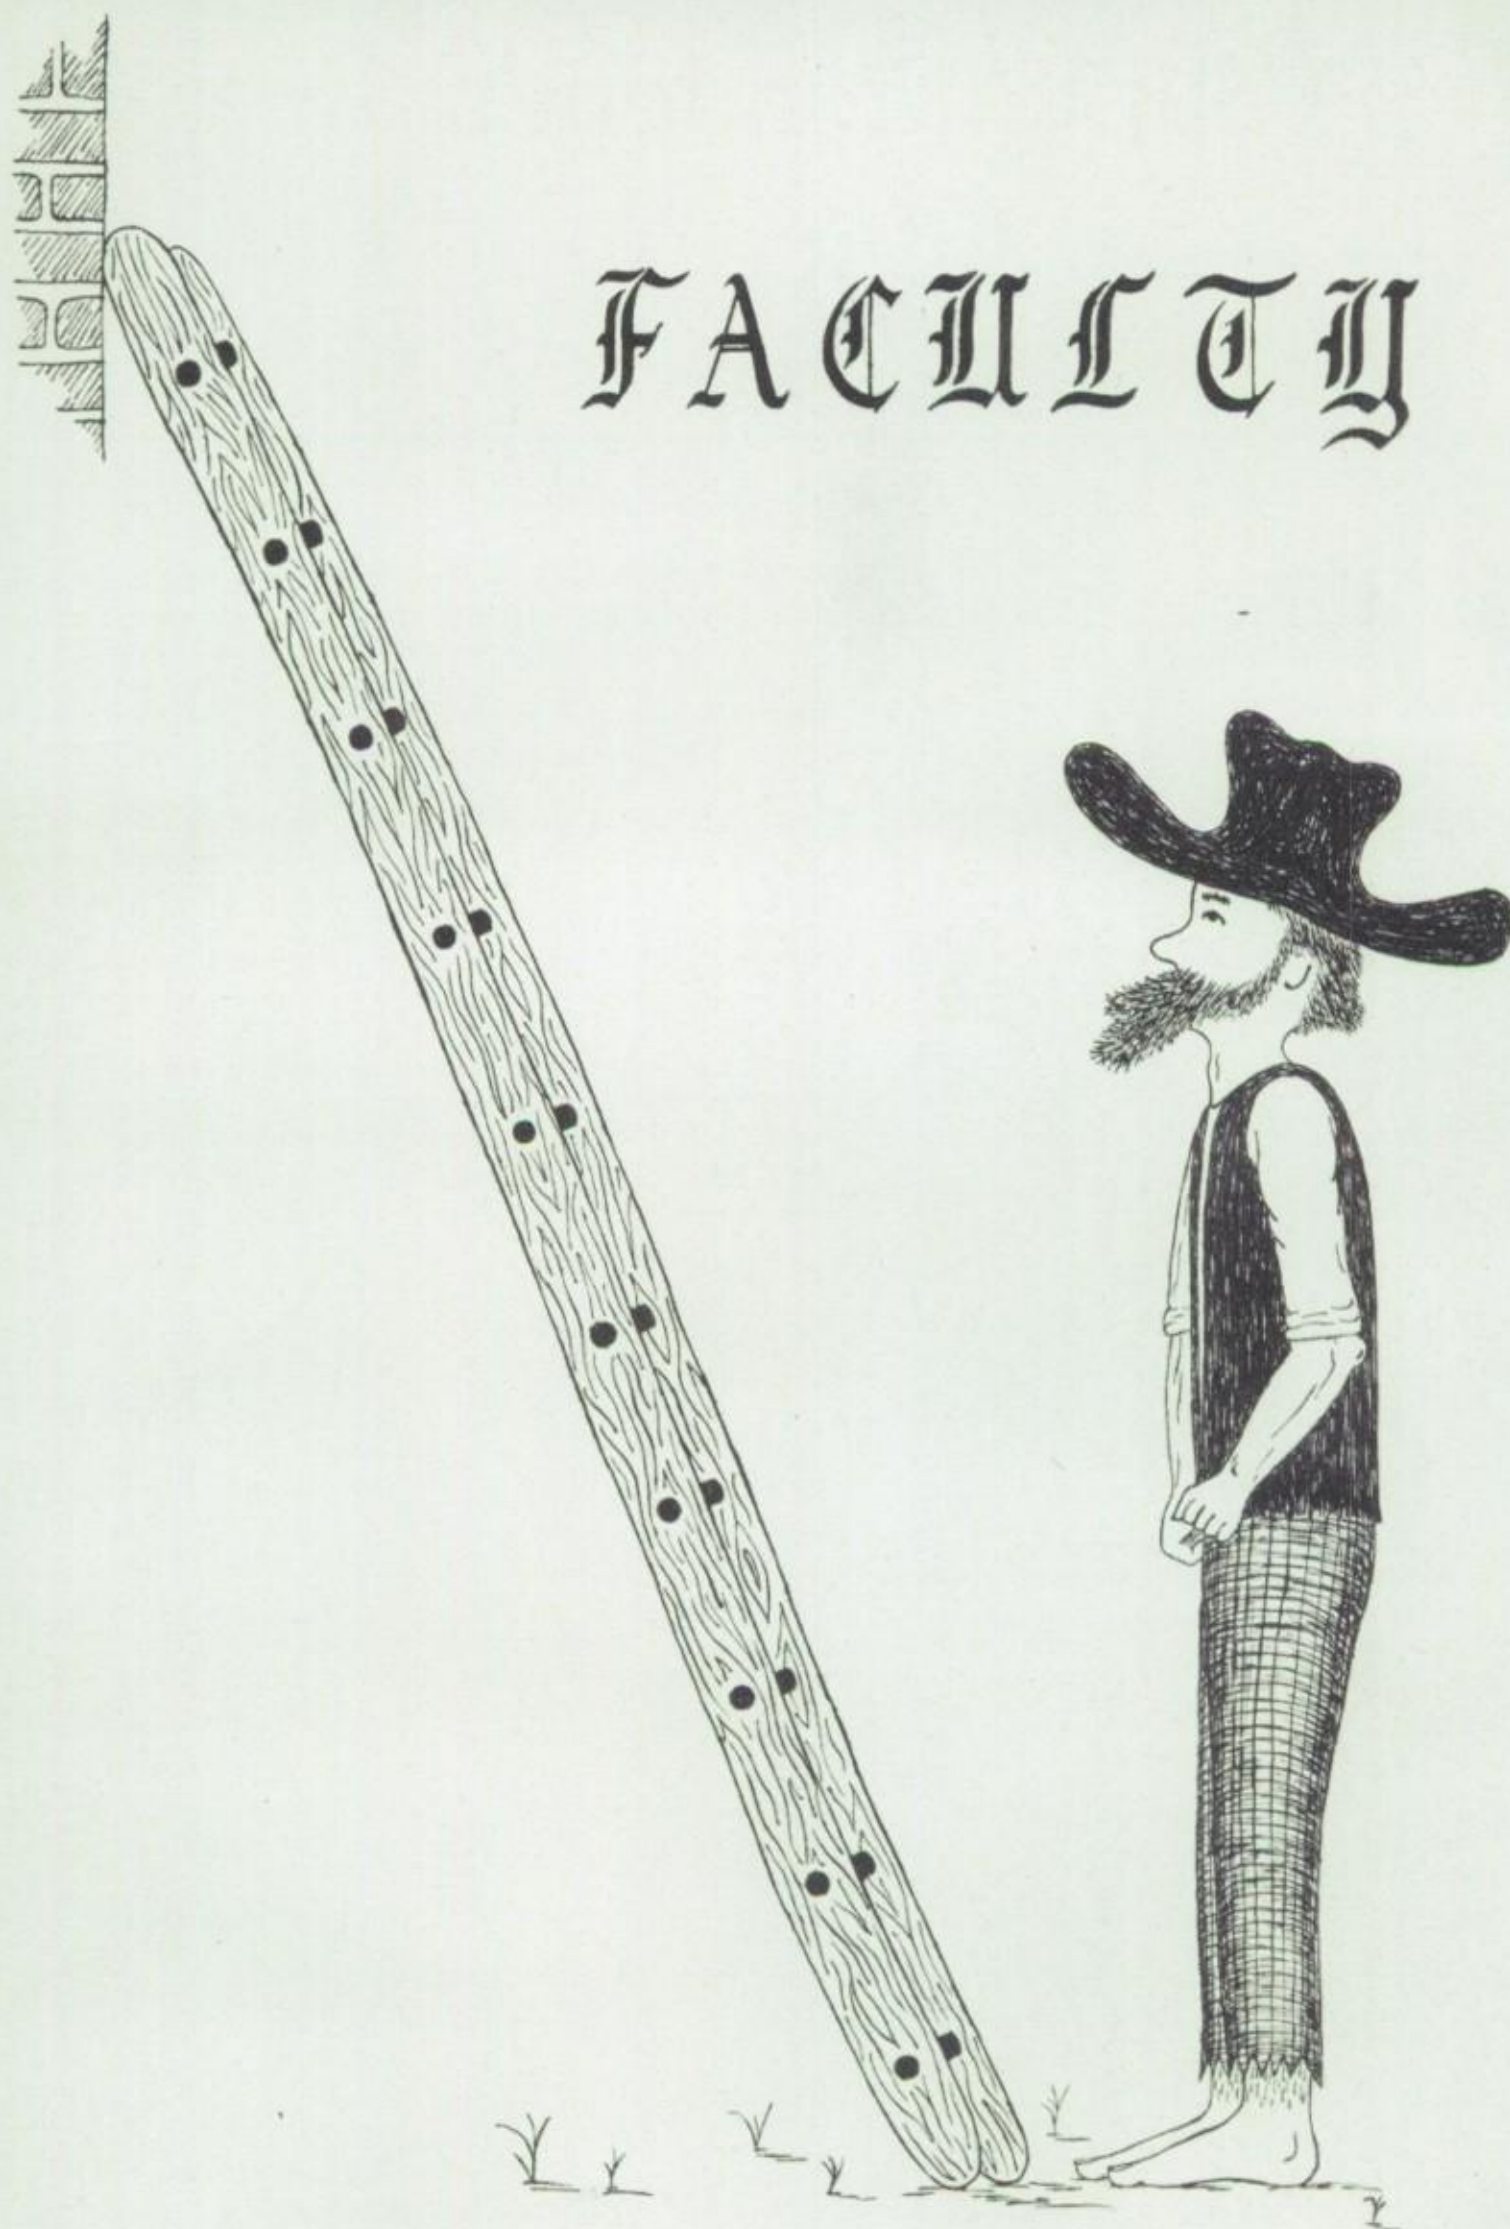

With good times

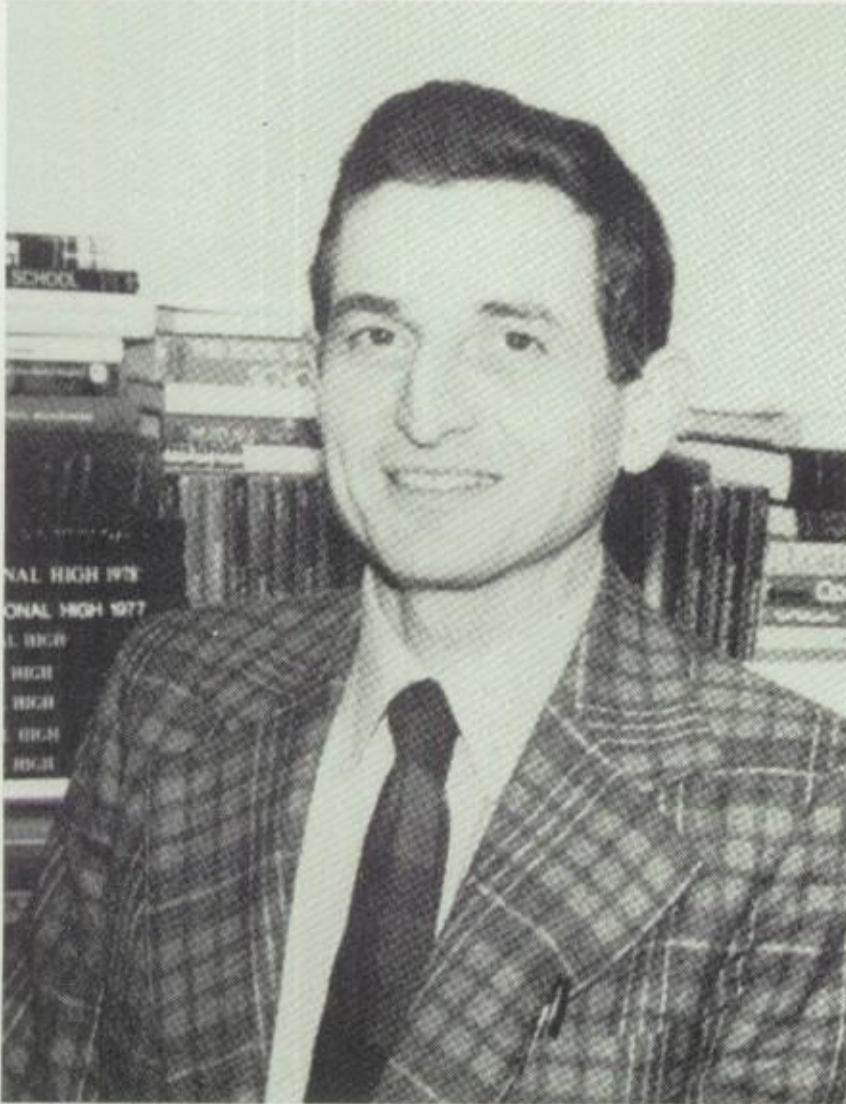

still to come

FACILITY

Superintendent's Office

DR. EDWARD YAGLOU, Superintendent

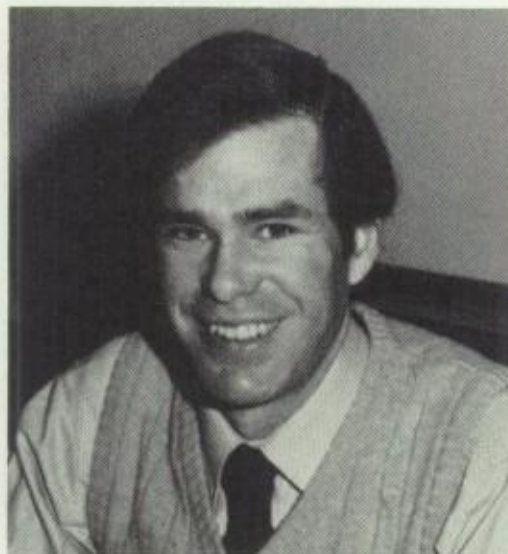

Message to the Class of 1983,

You are graduating at the lowest point in the economy in recent years. You and other young people have very swiftly come to taking education and job preparation much more seriously, given these economic facts of life. Surprising? . . . Hard times have always brought dreamers down to earth or, as some would say, brought "Maturity" or "the School of Hard Knocks." Ten years ago, an article on youth dissent was titled "You've Got to Have Grown Up in Scarsdale to Know How Bad Things Really Are." Hard times are not good times, but they do bring out the better qualities in each of us. All of us may now be ready to listen better to some counsel from Wilbur J. Bender, former Dean of Admissions at Harvard, who more than ten years ago stated ". . . the young are impatient, the poor are impatient, the mood of violence exists, and we are in a race between the ability of a lumbering, perplexed, imperfect society to move fast enough — and catastrophe. Perhaps what we need most, therefore, beyond commitment and action, is stamina, the ability to stick it out through turbulent times with patience, courage, tolerance and reasonable faith in the basic decency and good will of most Americans, black and white, and in our ability to build a better society by rational, peaceful means." Best wishes to all.

HAROLD LANE, Principal

Dear Members of the Class of 1983,

It remains one of my greatest privileges to be asked to write a note in the yearbook of each graduating class. There are few books that are able to freeze forever a portion of our lives like the high school yearbook. While it mirrors a particular time — the high school years — it becomes timeless as we periodically look back and seek to recapture the days of our youth. I hope that your Yearbook will do this faithfully for you and that it will retain some of the flavor of these years as you look back from the perspective of your own advancing years.

For many of you high school has been an exciting and challenging experience. You have used the opportunities provided you well to advance to the next stage in your life. For some it may have been a series of missed opportunities and unachieved potential. For all of you I hope that the lessons learned — for life teaches us through disappointments as well as successes if we let it — become beacons for what is to follow. I wish for each of you happiness, joy and contentment in whatever you choose to pursue and, perhaps most of all, a measure of love for your fellow man that truly will promote peace on earth and better understanding between all peoples.

As you leave Wachusett and scatter to wherever you will over the next years, I hope you will retain a sense of this school and your teachers and friends who were part of your life during these years. We will always stand ready to assist you in any way we can.

God Bless and Keep in Touch.

Yours very truly,

Harold M. Lane, Jr.

Ingmarie

Per and Helena

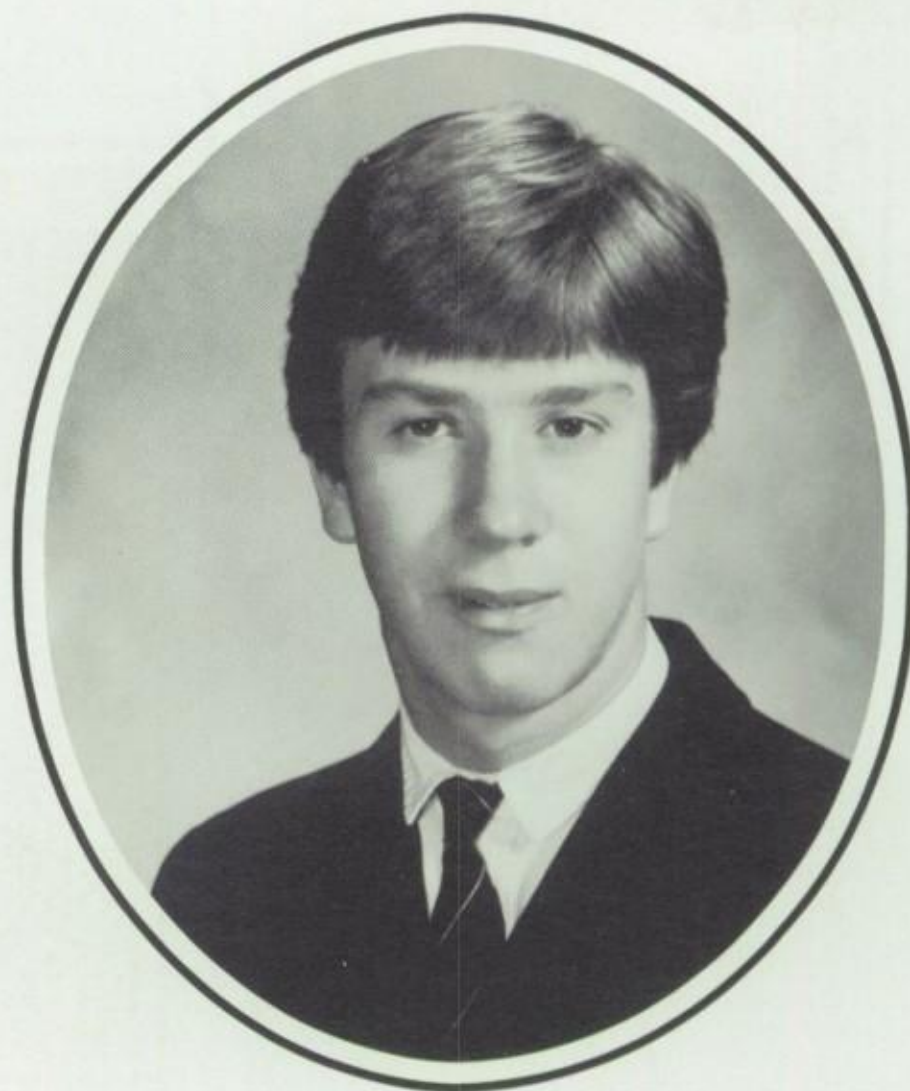

Ingmarie Arkhede comes to Wachusett from Lerum, Sweden. She is living at the Ellsworth's on Brattle St. She says that Holden is like Lerum except that there are more forests and lakes in Sweden.

Ingmarie likes to ski, hike, and write. She has enjoyed her stay here, especially her part in "Oklahoma." What she likes best about Wachusett are all the people here who have been so nice and helpful.

As Ingmarie leaves to go back to Sweden this June she wants to say thank you to all her new friends and tell Wachusett that we should be proud of our kindness.

Per Trulsson came from Sweden in August, 1982 "to try something different." His hometown, Vaxjo, is small and isolated by green forest. His visit here is his personal challenge to see if he can survive alone in a foreign country.

He feels that Americans are more relaxed than Swedes and take things less seriously. Since Per is active in soccer and skiing he enjoys the American enthusiasm for sports.

Per is staying with the Vacin family on Shrewsbury St. in Holden. In July he will return to Sweden where he will complete two years of school.

Helena Mattinen is from the important harbor city of Turku, Finland. She likes Holden and is glad to be experiencing the American scene.

Helena's impression of America is good for the most part. It's different from what she expected — She thought we would be like t.v. personalities. Helena thinks that Americans are more spontaneous, friendly, and open than Finns. She wishes everyone could have the chance to come to America.

She has one and a half years of school to finish when she returns to Finland. She will be studying language and history. Helena will always remember Wachusett and all the "crazy people."

From Moonbeam

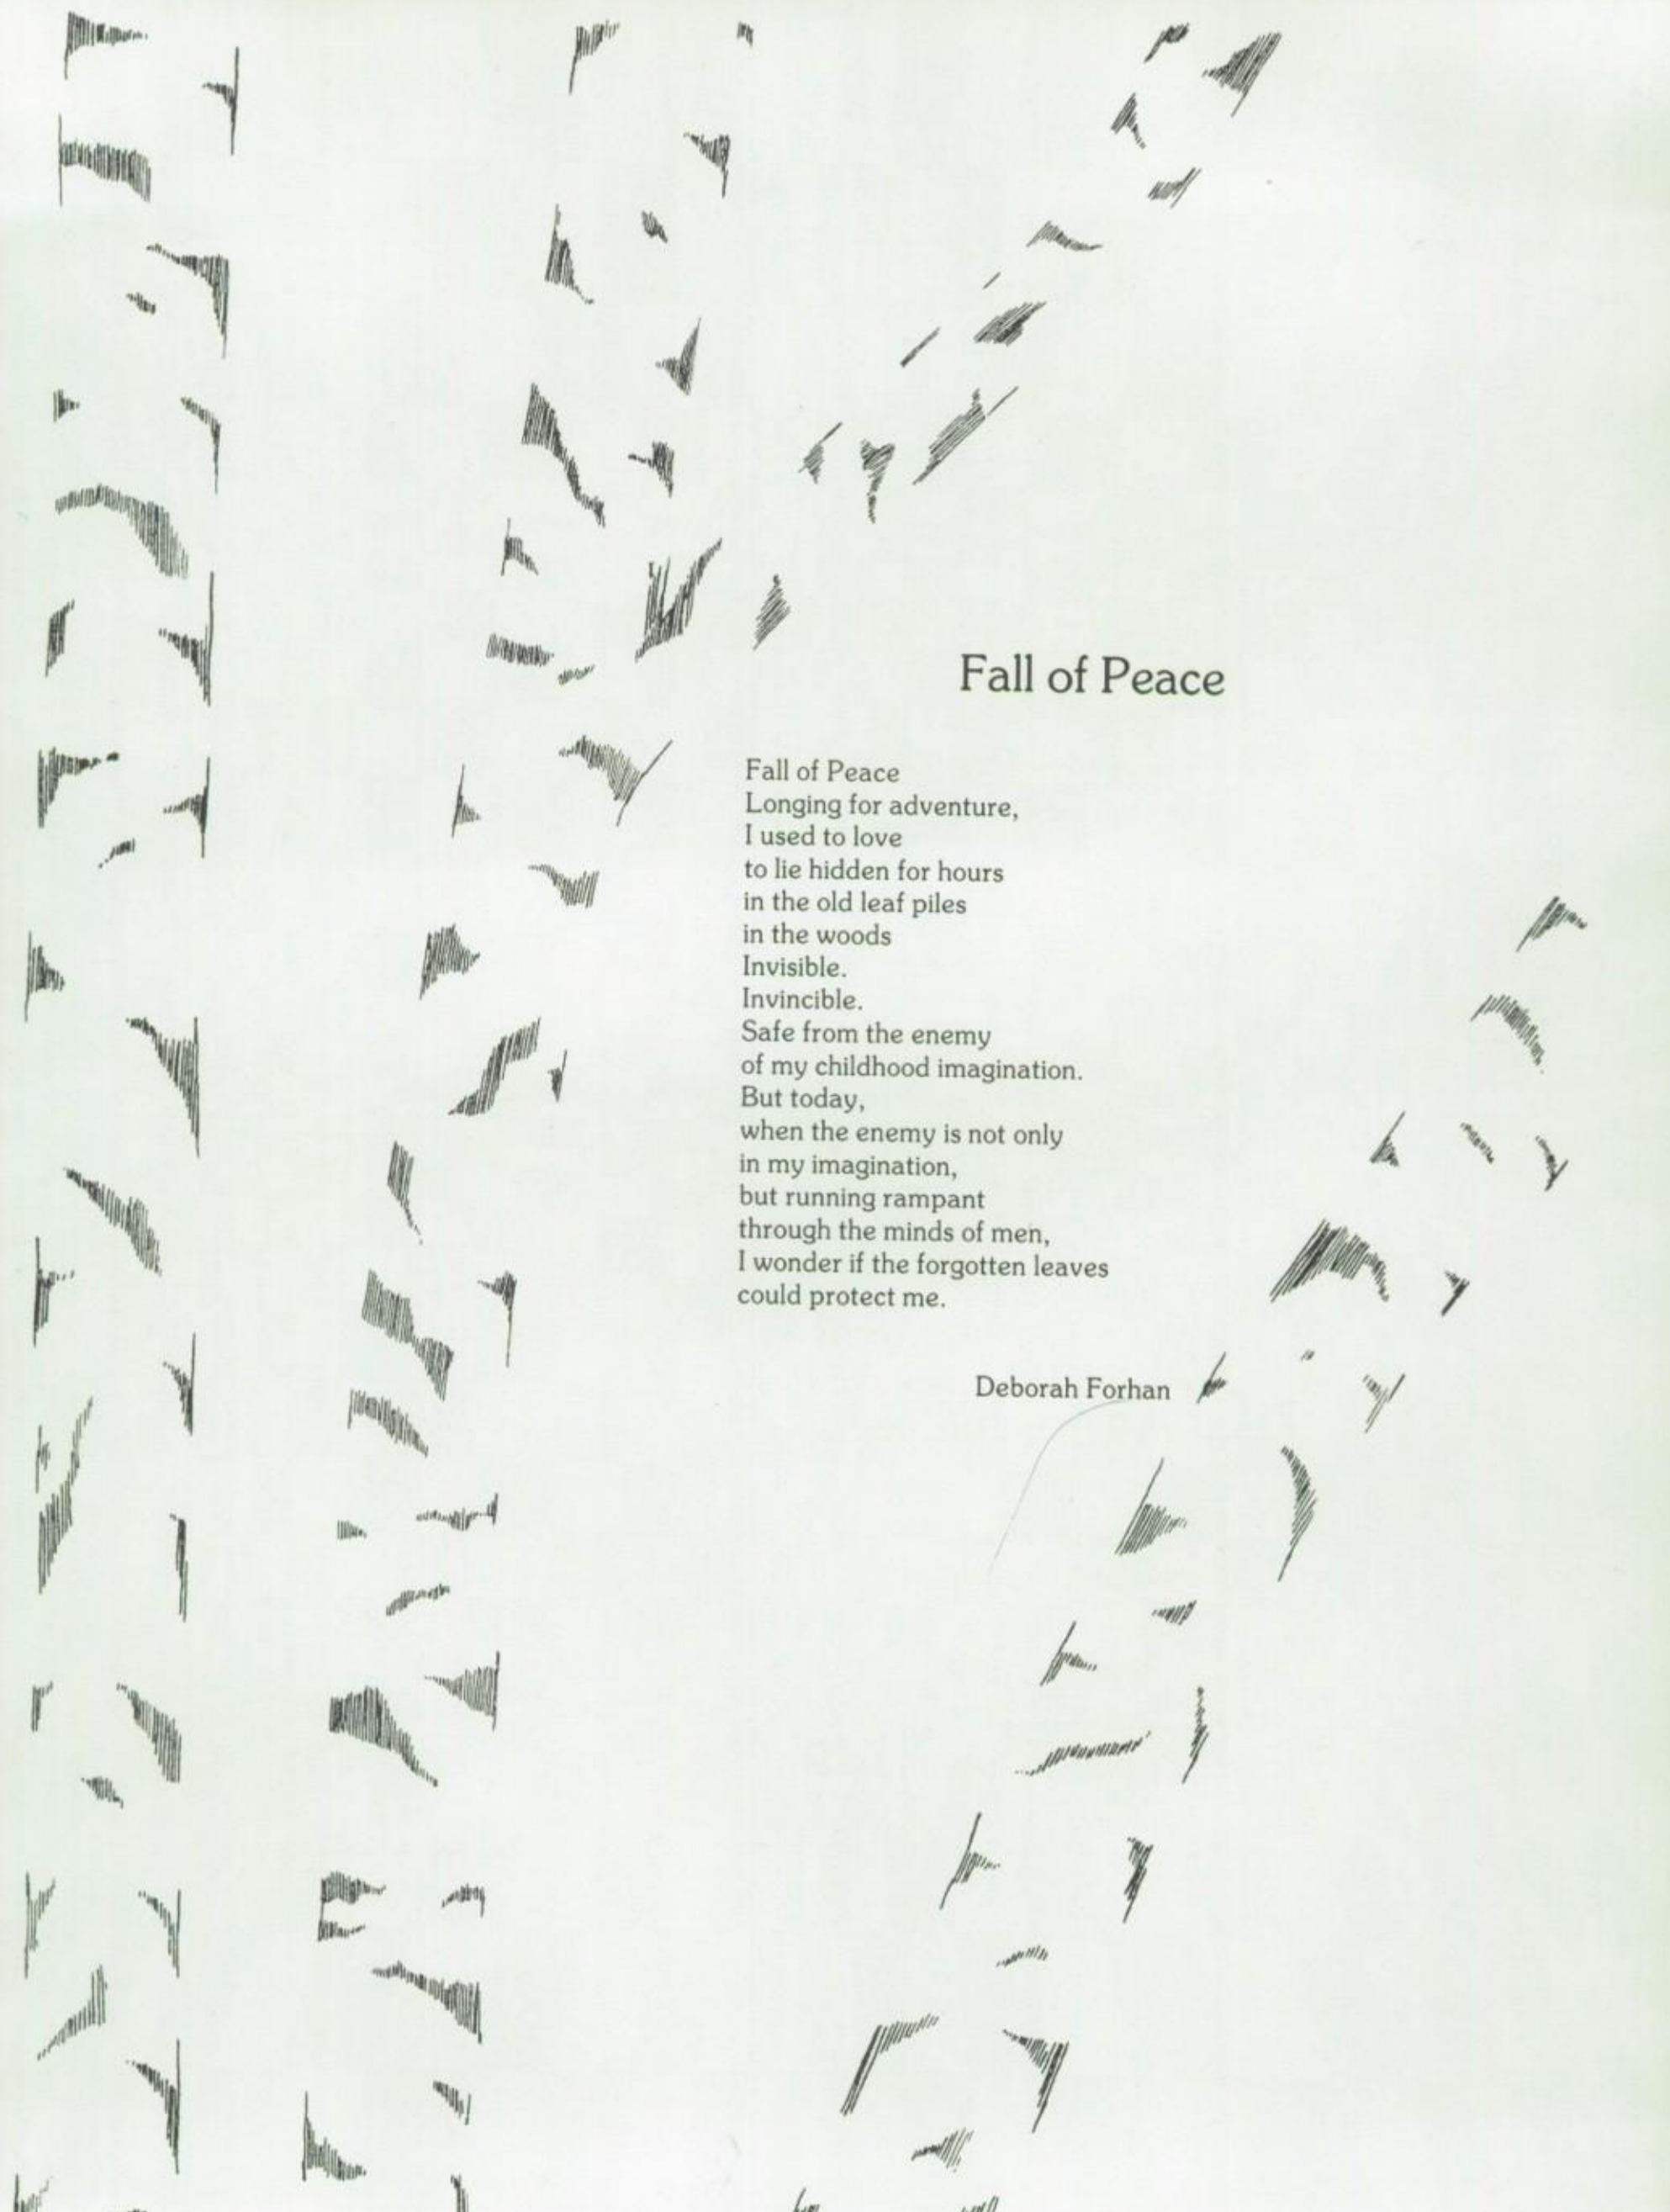

We were all together.
A pelt, a trip, a song, a hope.
We laughed
And cried.
We looked
And learned from our dreams and hopes.
I confided in you,
And you in me.
We were one together strong.
A brick wall.

I saw it dimming down.
The candle melting to its end,
And one by one we left.
We had responsibilities, appointments, and work.
No more concerts, week-day benders, midnight talks.
Skinny dipping at Echo seems a foggy memory
Hidden in the corner of my mind.

But I can look back
With a sigh of relief, a cry, and a laugh at old jokes
Preserved in scattered pictures
And smiles we left behind.

I love yesterday.
Remembering the days I had with you,
I'll live tomorrow with the knowledge I learned from you.
To you my friends,
All I can say is
I love you forever and ever.

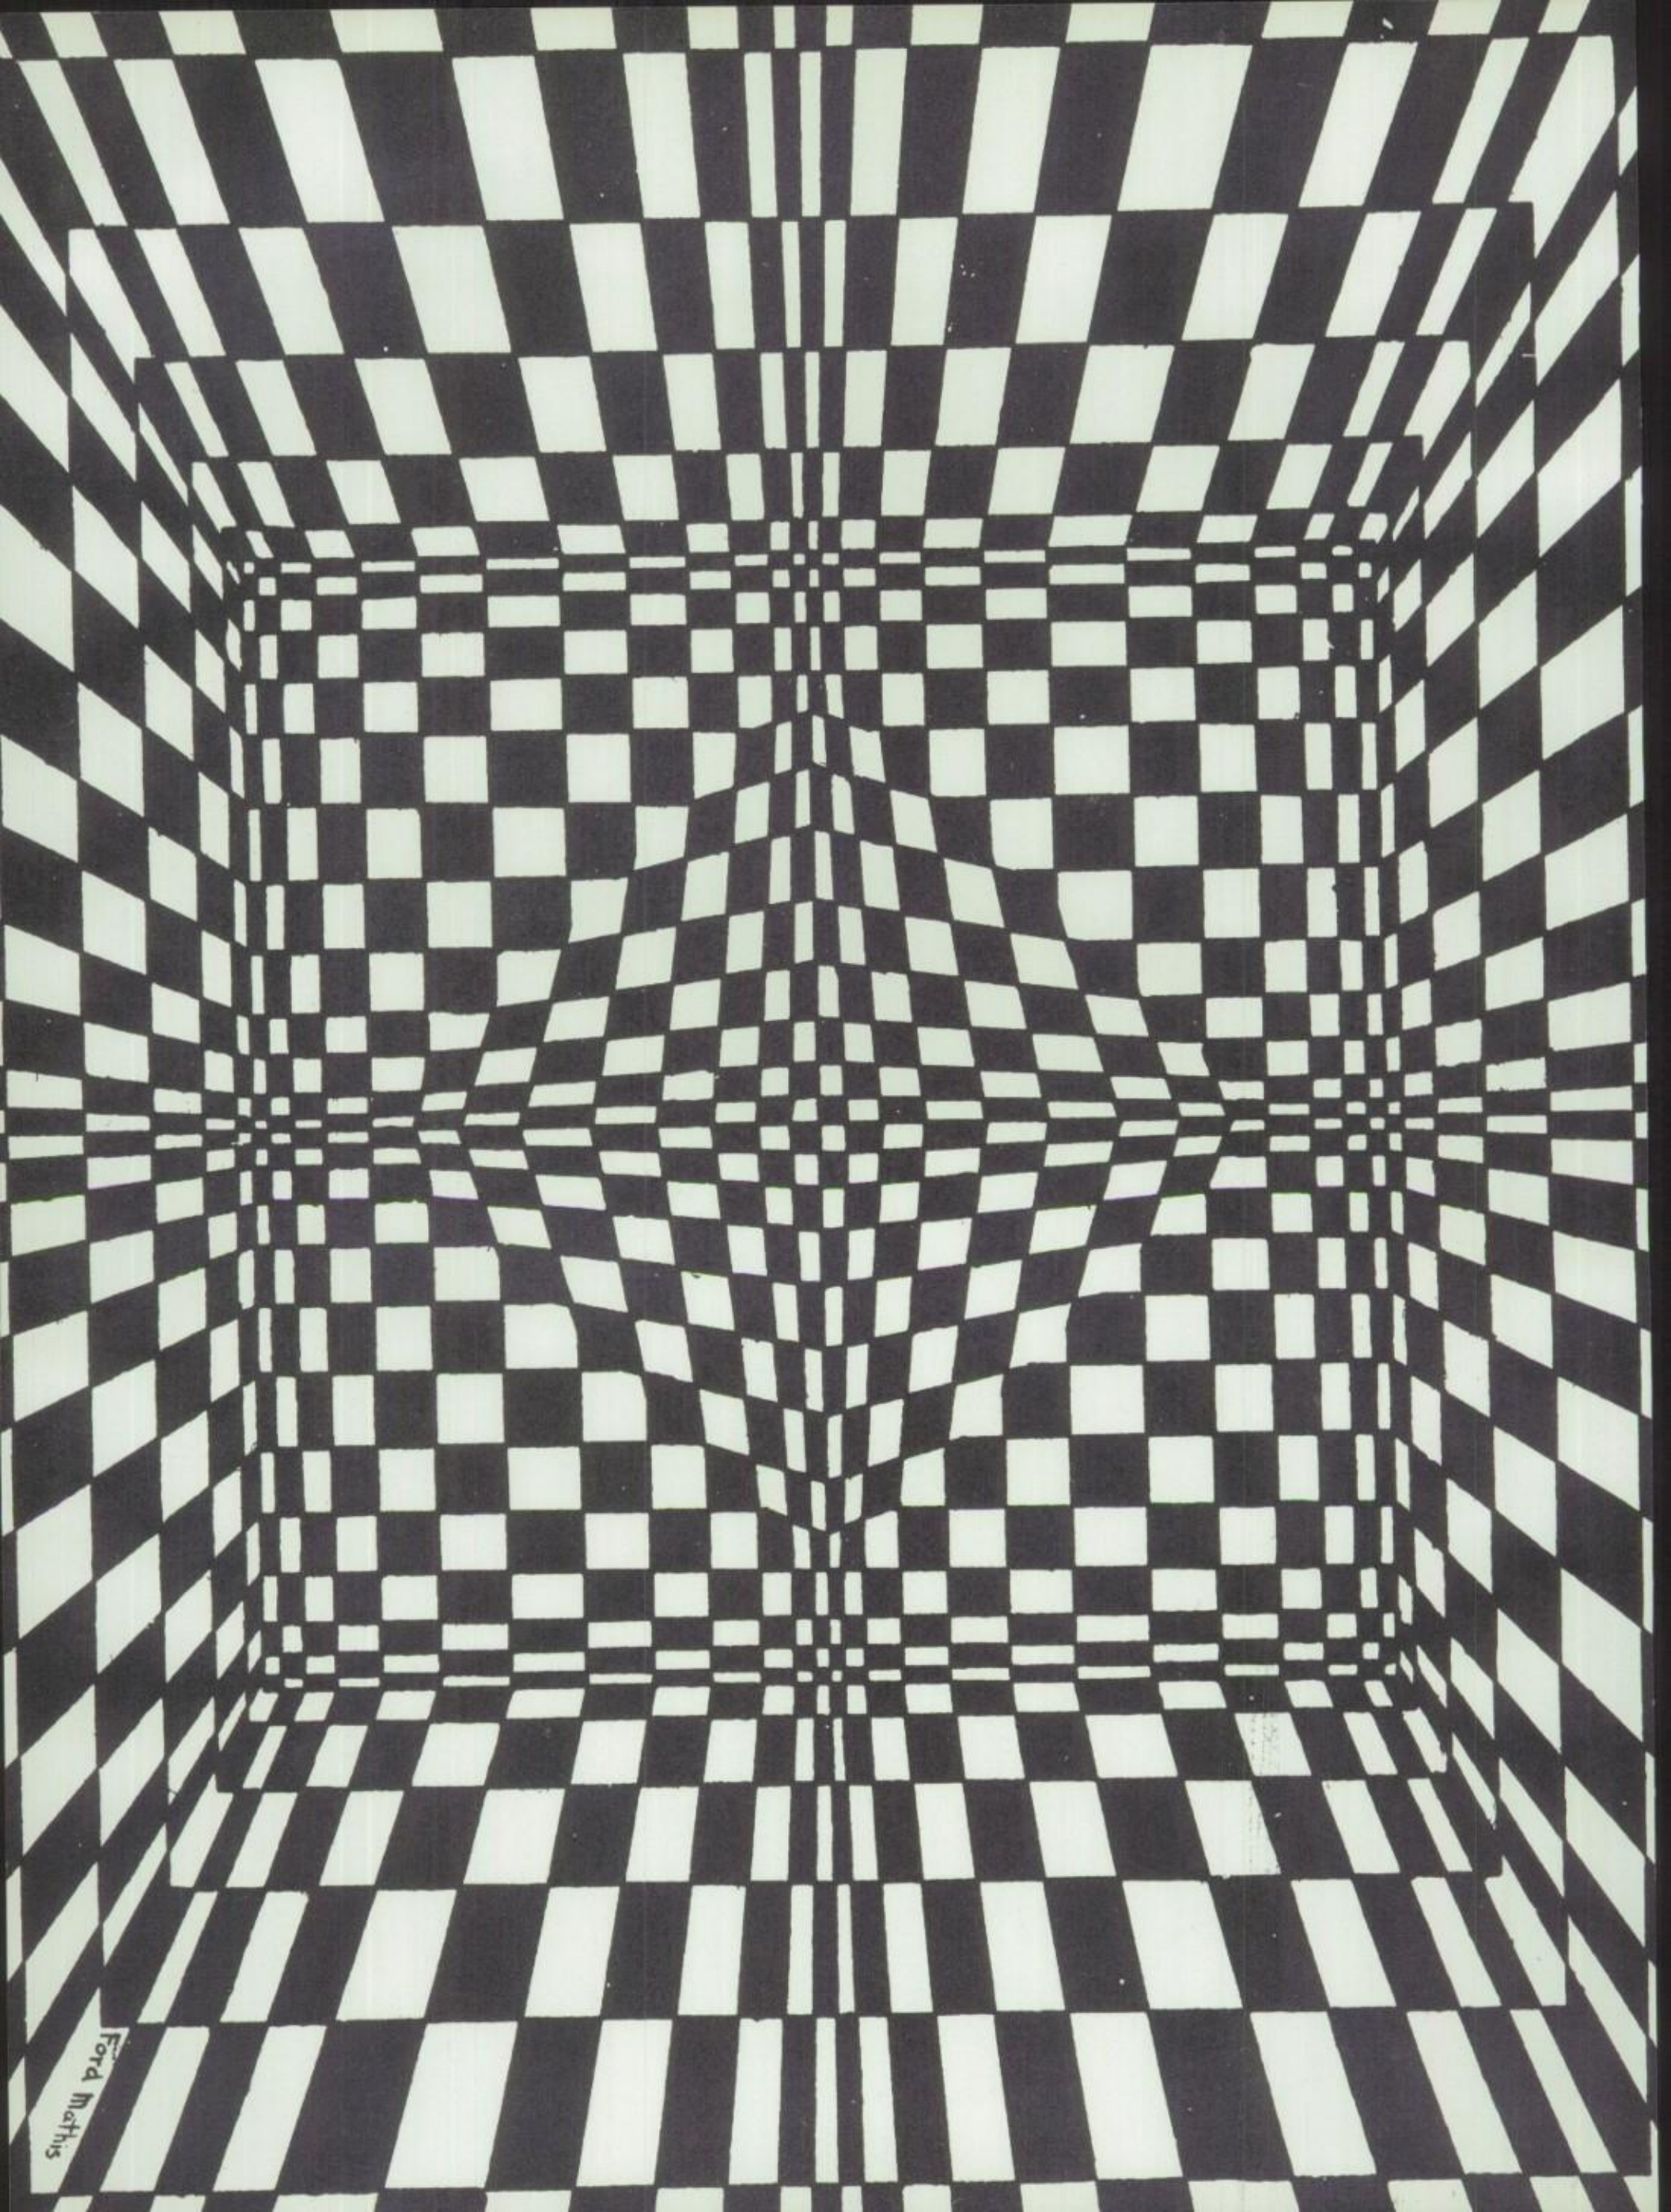

Merry McKenney

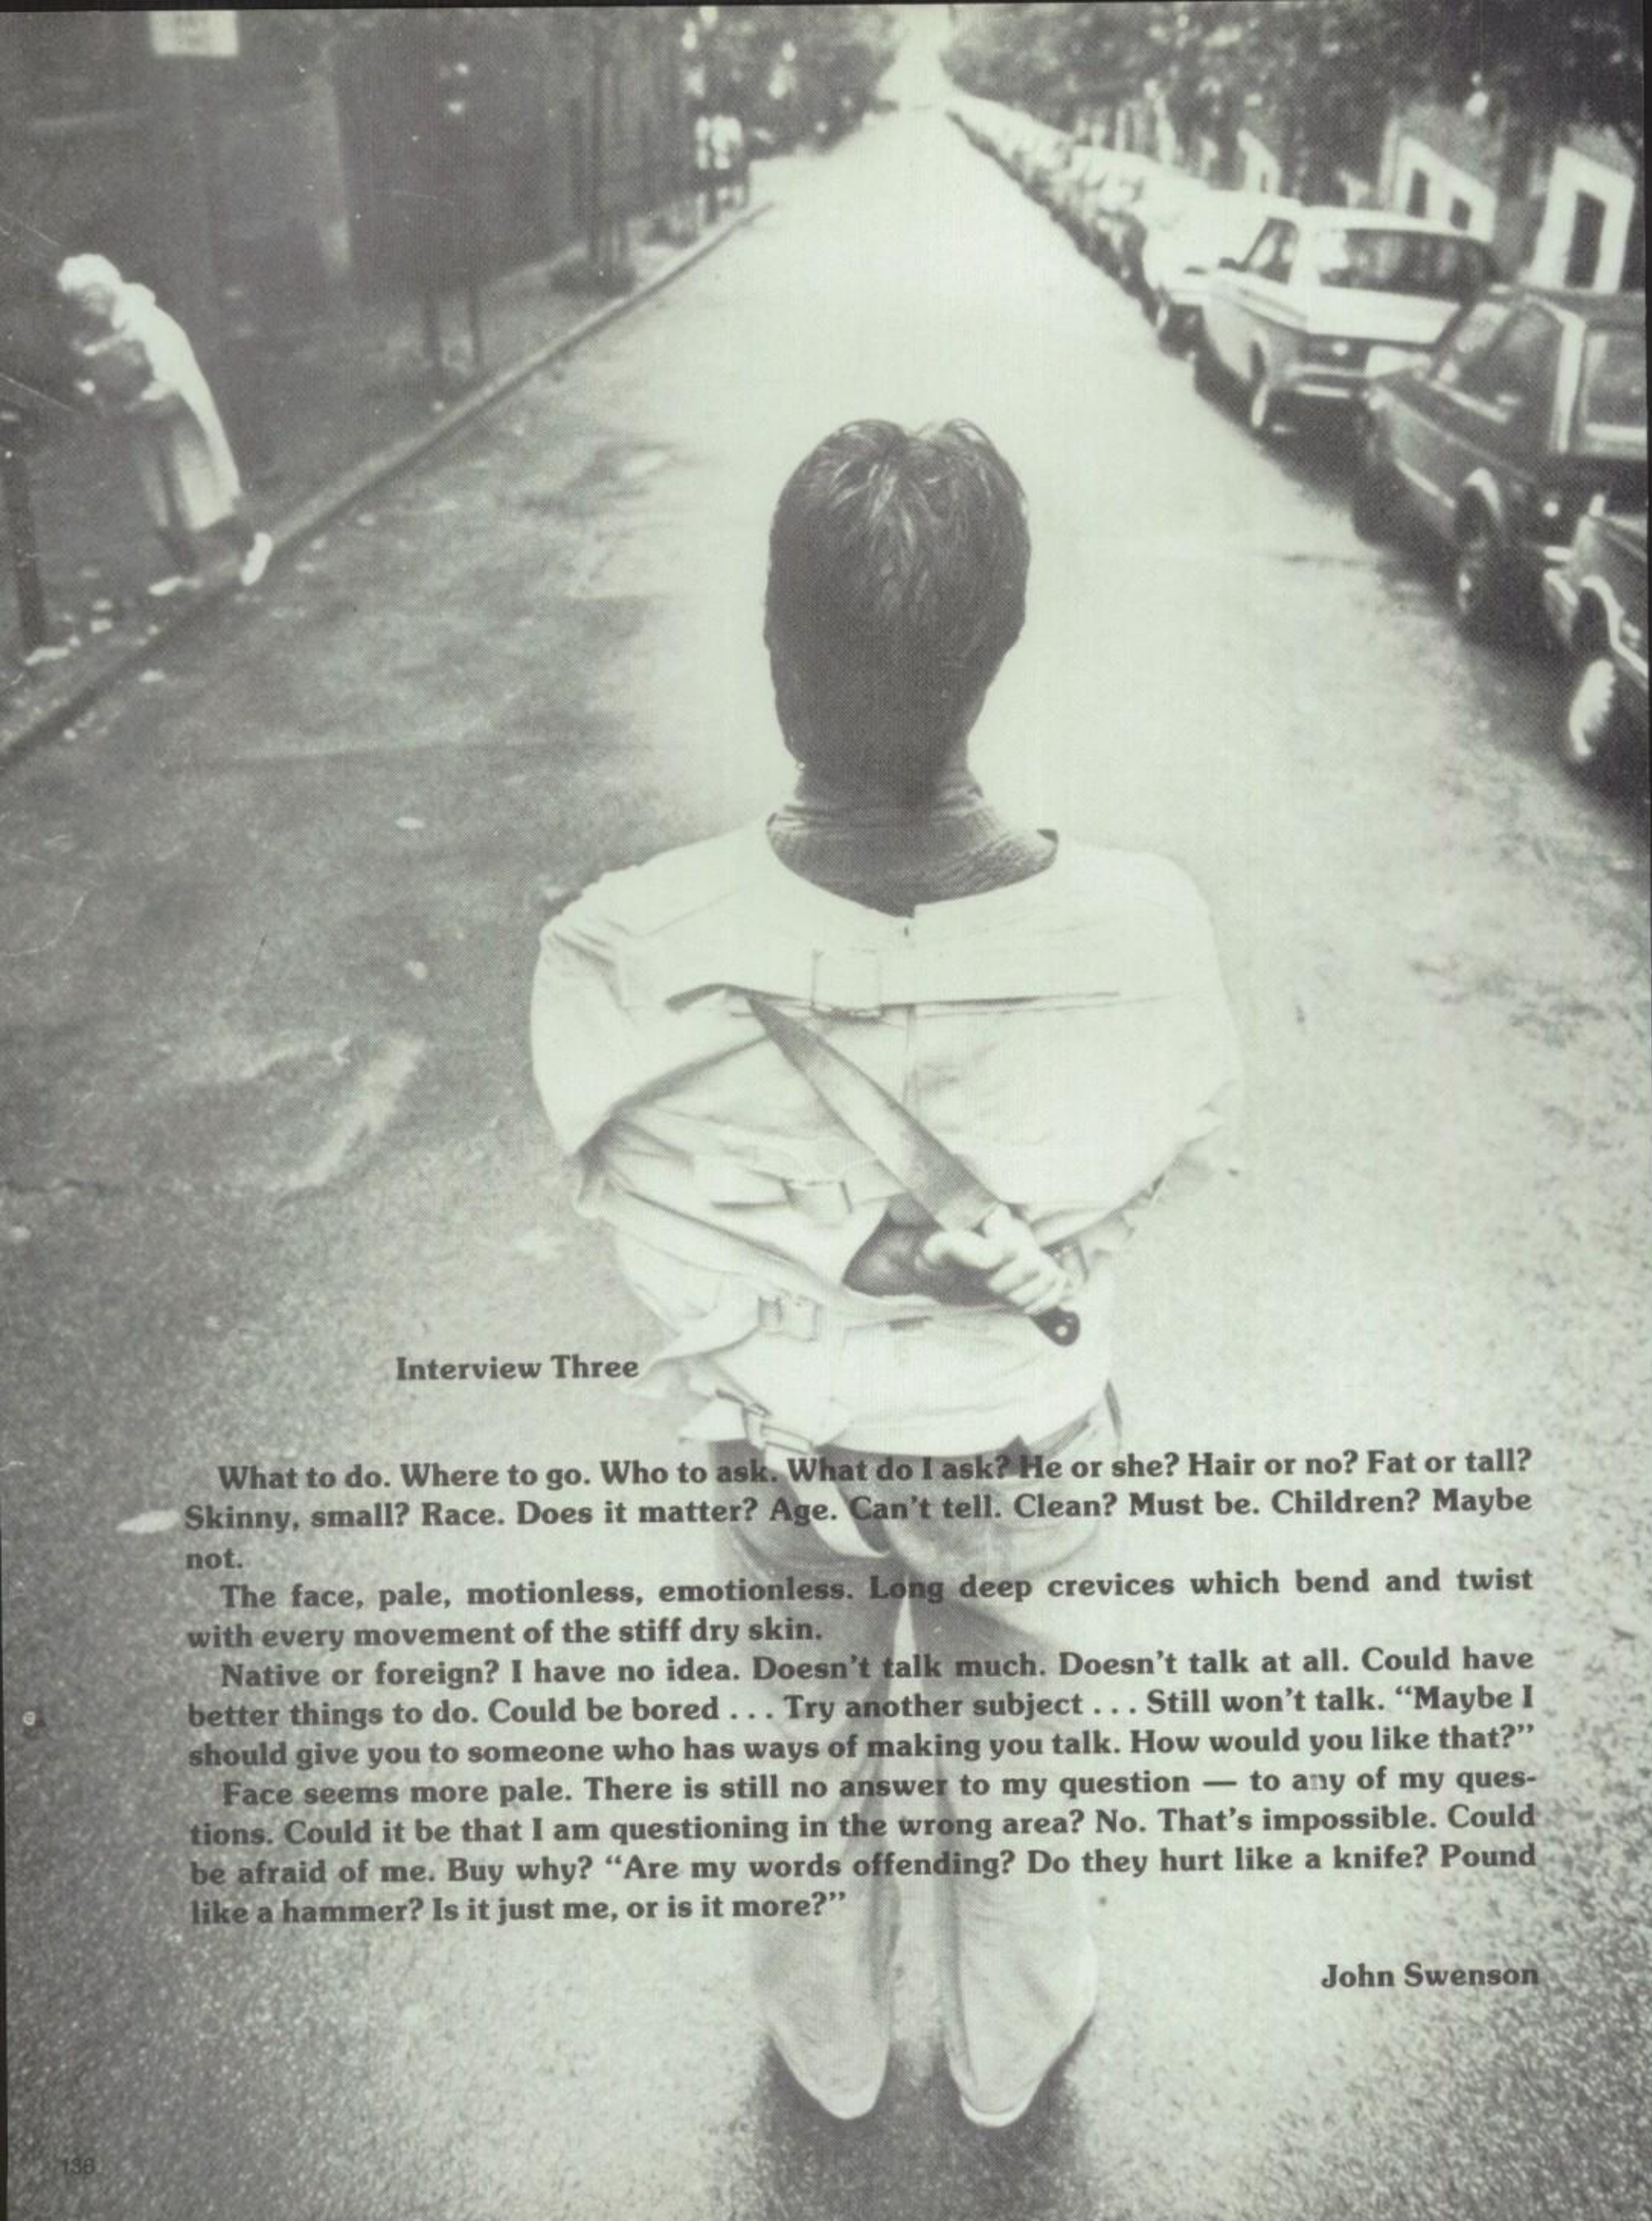

Fall of Peace

Fall of Peace
Longing for adventure,
I used to love
to lie hidden for hours in the old leaf piles
in the woods
Invisible.
Invincible.
Safe from the enemy
of my childhood imagination.
But today,
when the enemy is not only
in my imagination,
but running rampant
through the minds of men,
I wonder if the forgotten leaves could protect me.

Deborah Forhan

Interview Three

What to do. Where to go. Who to ask. What do I ask? He or she? Hair or no? Fat or tall? Skinny, small? Race. Does it matter? Age. Can't tell. Clean? Must be. Children? Maybe not.

The face, pale, motionless, emotionless. Long deep crevices which bend and twist with every movement of the stiff dry skin.

Native or foreign? I have no idea. Doesn't talk much. Doesn't talk at all. Could have better things to do. Could be bored . . . Try another subject . . . Still won't talk. "Maybe I should give you to someone who has ways of making you talk. How would you like that?"

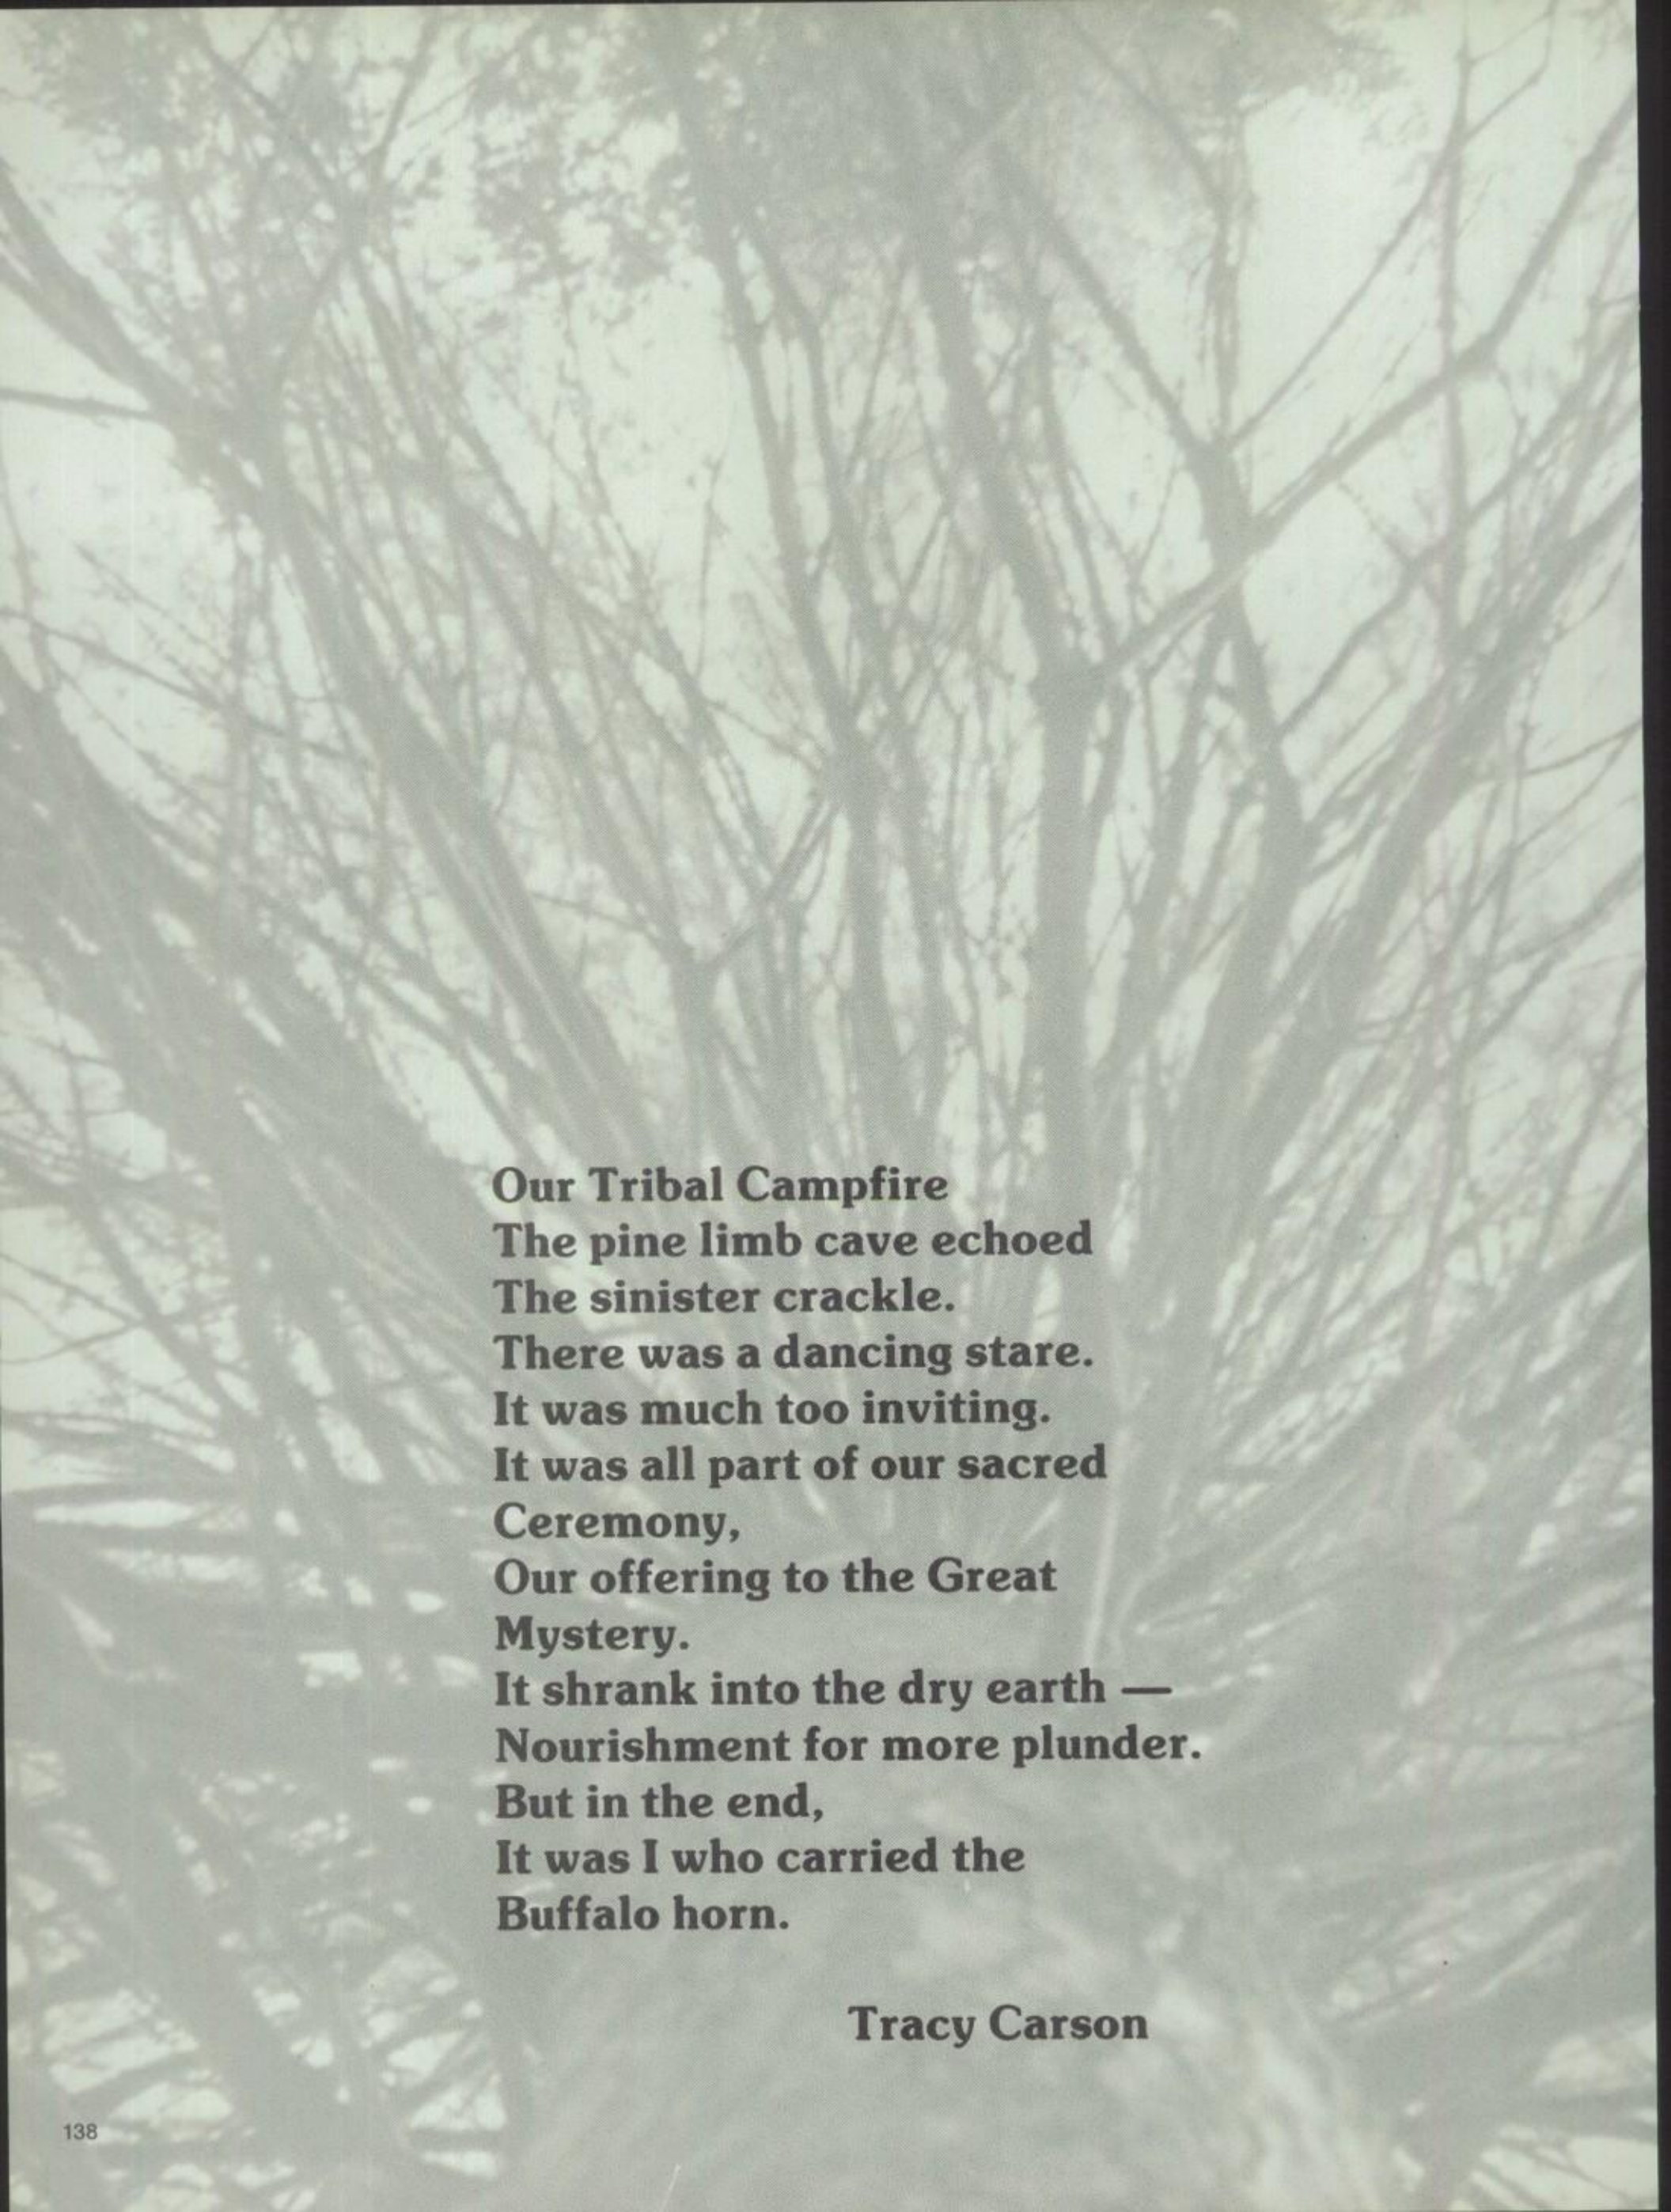

Face seems more pale. There is still no answer to my question — to any of my questions. Could it be that I am questioning in the wrong area? No. That's impossible. Could be afraid of me. Buy why? "Are my words offending? Do they hurt like a knife? Pound like a hammer? Is it just me, or is it more?"

John Swenson

DREAMS BEGIN...
WHERE RAINBOWS END

CH

Our Tribal Campfire
The pine limb cave echoed
The sinister crackle.
There was a dancing stare.
It was much too inviting.
It was all part of our sacred Ceremony,
Our offering to the Great Mystery.
It shrank into the dry earth —
Nourishment for more plunder.
But in the end,
It was I who carried the Buffalo horn.

Tracy Carson

OBSERVATION

Some people leave this world
On a little pleasure cruise,
In their monogrammed luggage
An array of drugs to use.
The travelers sit staring up
At a spinning stained glass sky
As people in reality
Soberly pass them by.
I don't know where they go
These travelers of the mind.
They're searching for a distant land
Which they never find.

James Lockhart

Manhattan Serenade

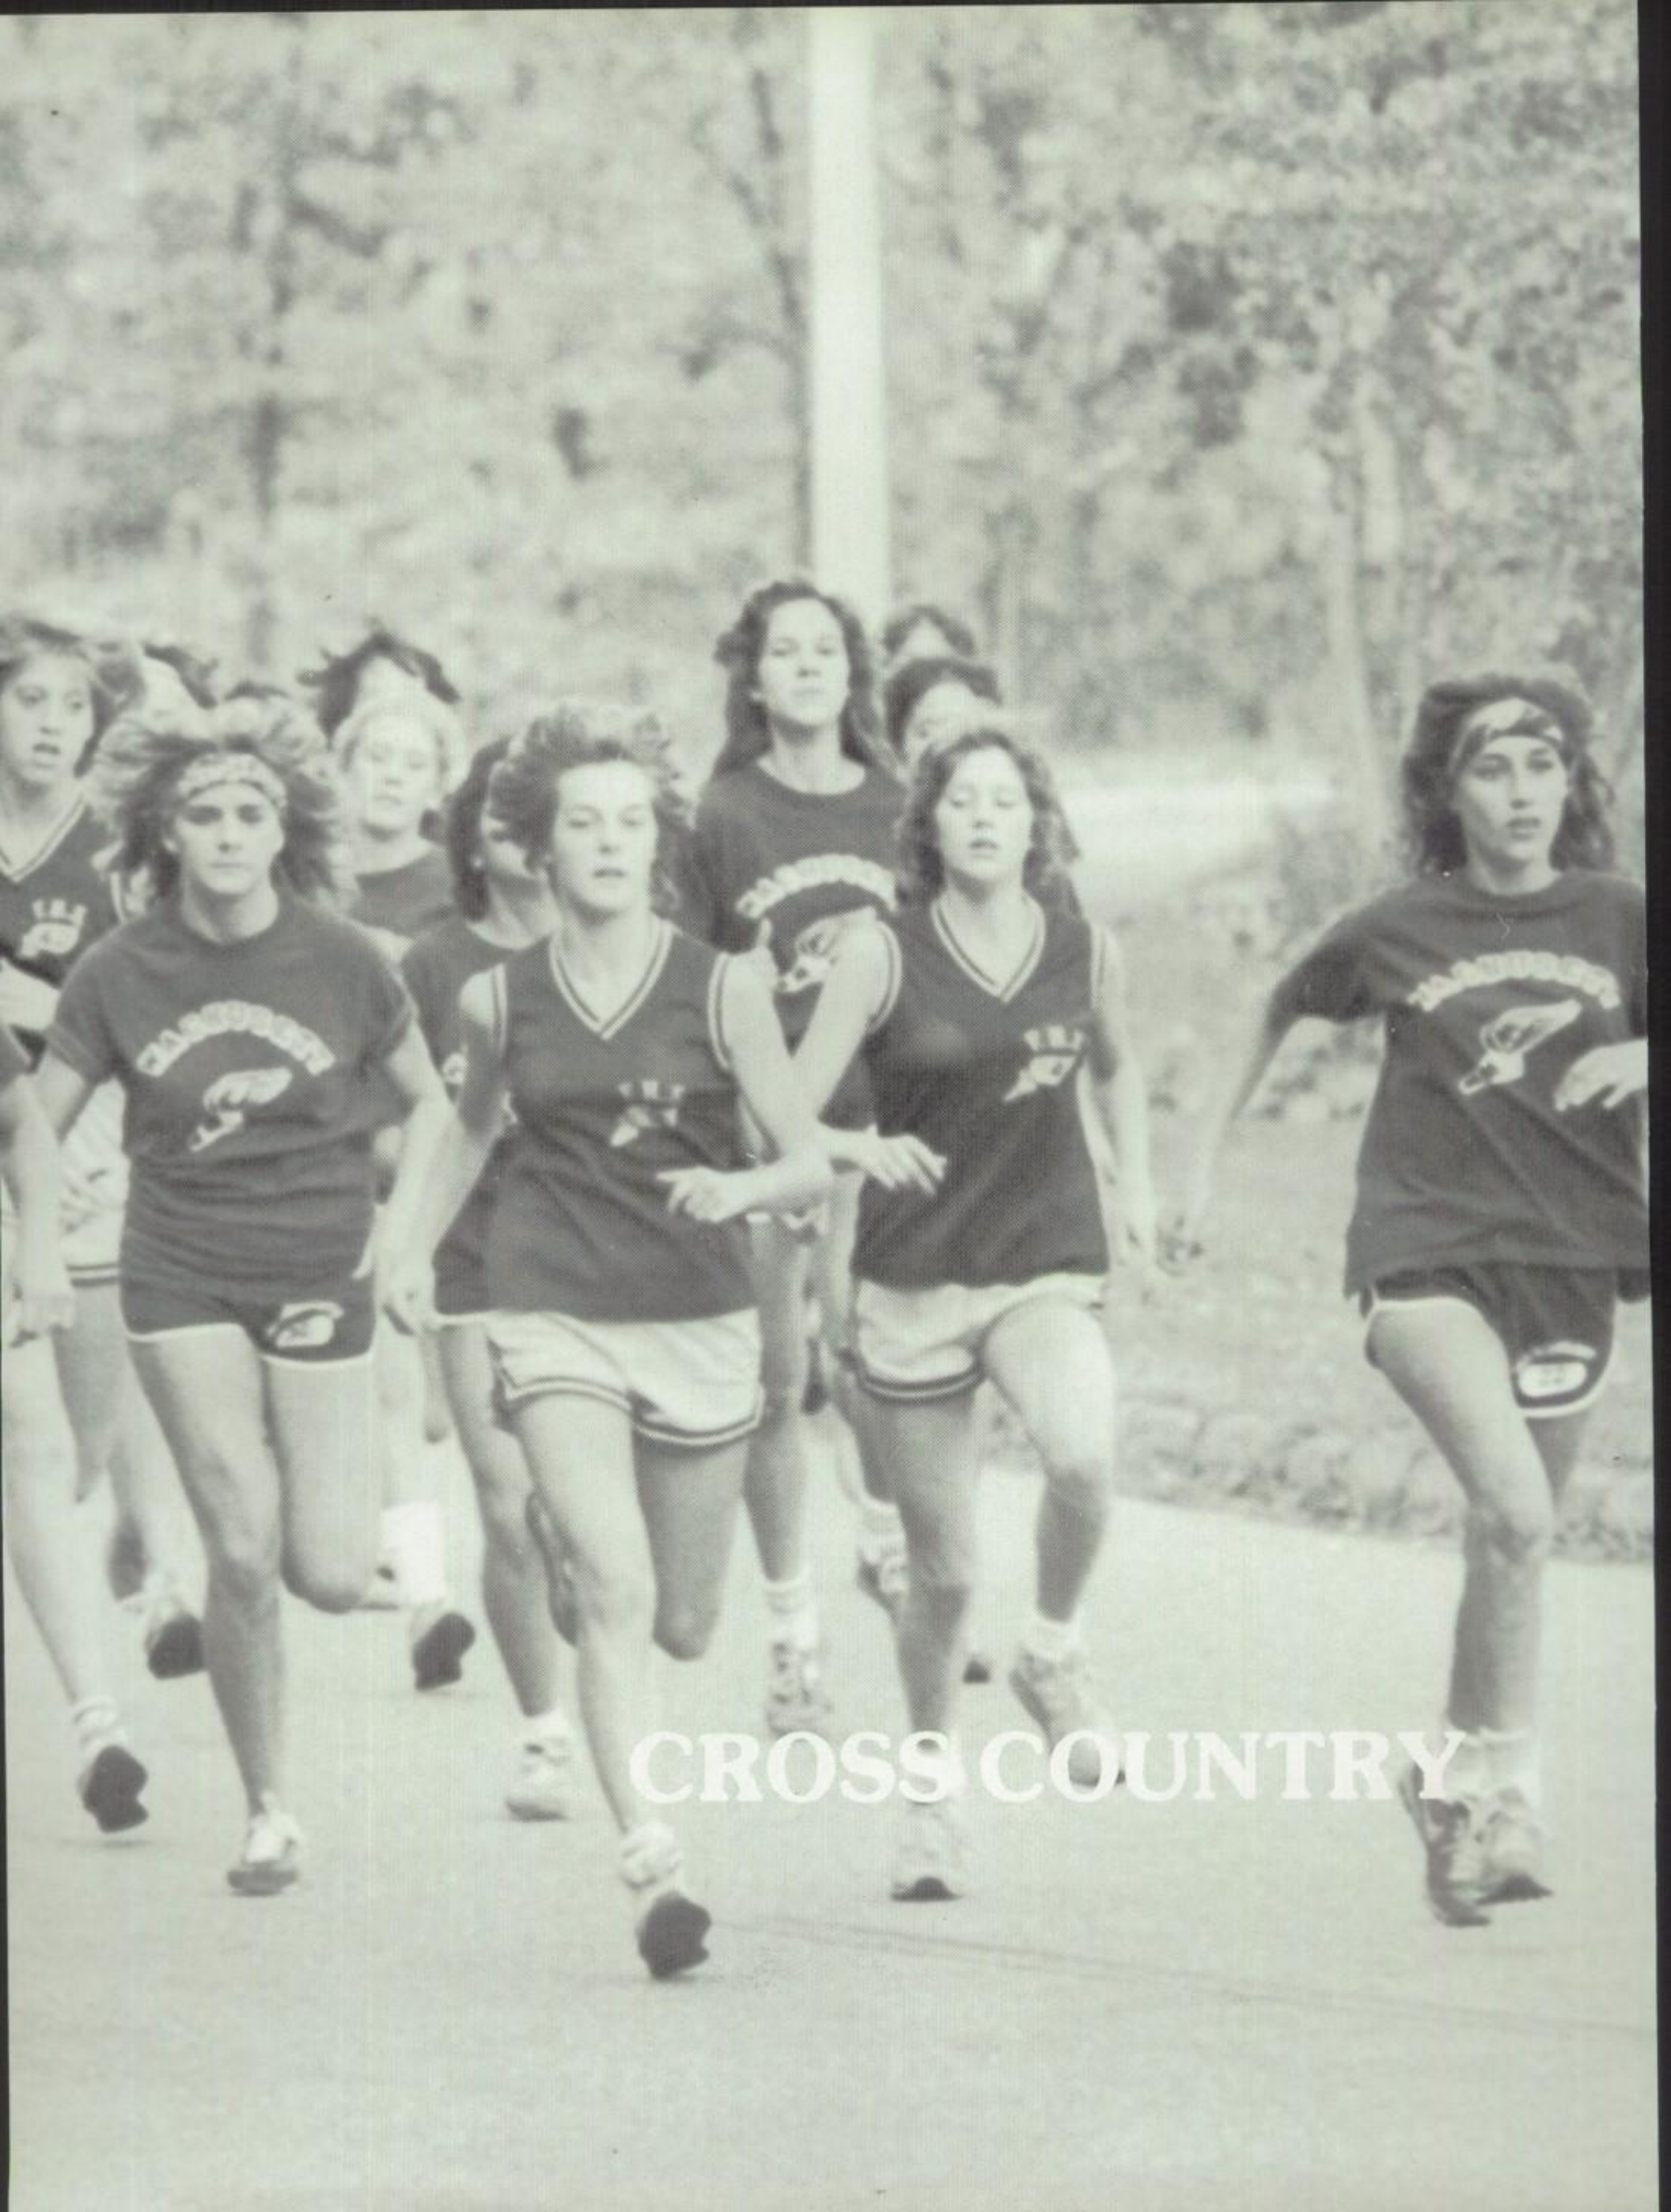

Fingers tap a rhythm
and a sigh slips past dry lips.
The index finger follows a pattern in the grain of the wooden chair;
it memorizes a deep crack.
Slowly fingers curl into palm and clutch air in a fist.
Her heart beats double time.
The music slides from her crossed legs;
she grabs for it.
They announce her name
and she stands up slowly clutching the paper walking by them toward an old piano white knuckles taut against sun-tanned skin.

The feeling of a final parting,
a final curtain,
a final glimpse,
brings tears
You are becoming a dream,
a memory of the past,
someone I can look back upon and smile.
I've learned so much from you;
I'm perhaps better for it.
Our lives have changed a little because of each other.
That is why you will always be with me,
and I with you.
And through the miles and minutes
of space and time,
I want to share with you . . .
a glowing smile
a tingle of warmth happiness . . .
When I recall in a memory that you were someone I loved.

K. Spanknebel

*Wondering aloud how we feel today.
We are our own survivors as we start,
Our hearts beating life into each other.
Wondering aloud will the years treat us well?*
